

CHANCELLOR SPOKE ON "CAPTAINS OF INDUSTRY" AT COMMERCIAL BANQUET

Chancellor Beatty addressed Commercial Society Banquet at Mount Royal—Sir Arthur Currie, Sir Charles Gordon, Mr. Walter Molson and Grant Glasco spoke—Many prominent business men were guests—Graduates out in strong force. "Commerce night" a great success.

Over forty of the most prominent business men of Montreal were treated to an demonstration of college spirit and saw a vivid and true-to-life picture of the Commerce spirit and the workings of the School of Commerce at the banquet of the Commercial Society at the Mount Royal Hotel last night. As one of the speakers pointed out, successful men of nearly every line of business enterprise were present and these were some of the men who could be included in the subject of Chancellor Beatty's speech, Captains of Industry. The Salle Dore was filled to capacity with undergraduates of the School of Commerce and there was a table reserved for the graduates who turned out strongly in attending the function. The speakers of the evening were Mr. Walter Molson, the Chancellor, the Principal Sir Charles Gordon and Grant Glasco, T. Mitchell, the president of the Society, occupied the chair and around the table which was shapely in the form of a U. were the invited guests from the city and the entire professoriate of the School of Commerce. Basil MacLean, president of the Students' Council, was also a guest at the banquet.

The first speaker of the evening was Mr. Walter Molson whom the chairman introduced as one of the younger graduates of McGill. Mr. Molson proposed the toast to the Alma Mater and the in his remarks gave a few thumb-nail sketches of the different meanings the words Alma Mater conveyed to the men in the different faculties. The Alma Mater, continued the speaker, will be the spirit and the ideal to which graduates will look to in later life. When the great war came, the men of McGill were foremost in the ranks of the Canadian army. After the speaker had proposed the toast the gathering rose to its feet and sang the Alma Mater Hymn, and followed it through with a rousing McGill yell.

Sir Arthur Currie in replying to the toast stated that McGill should feel proud of the assembly of business men that had come to be present at a college function. He was glad to note that to-day men from outside the university could be invited to college banquets and would carry away a good impression. In the past this was not the case. The tone in the college was undergoing a decided improvement. Sir Arthur then spoke a few words on the place of the college man in business and went on to say that several business men had told him that the day was not far off when the heads of departments in business would be college graduates. Sir Arthur stressed the value of integrity in all the undertakings of college affairs and pointed out that this was, too, the all-important element in business. The man gathered about the board would bear this statement out declared the principal. Touching on the subject of college sports, Sir Arthur made the statement that in themselves they were very good, but when they interfered with the studies, they should be cut out. Fame in athletics was a good thing, but the men were in college primarily for study. The fraternities, too, could do a great work in furthering the scholastic success of its members. It should be the duty of every fraternity member to see that his brother was succeeding in his work, concluded Sir Charles.

Sir Charles Gordon of the Dominion Textile Co. proposed the toast to the School of Commerce. Sir Charles said that he had looked up the curriculum of the School and after a perusal of the studies in this course came to the conclusion that if all the men graduating knew the subjects that were taught and knew them thoroughly that the men in business to-day would lose their jobs. If this were true the Chancellor would, with the rest lose his job as president of the C. P. R. However, the fact remained that men trained in a college to-day have an exceptionally bright future ahead of them. The business world of to-day needs College trained men concluded Sir Charles.

Grant Glasco of Commerce 25 replied to the toast tendered to the School of Commerce. He drew the attention of the undergraduates to that had come to the banquet and said that it in itself was evidence of the link that bound the graduate to his Alma Mater. The gathering then sang God Save King and the walls of the Mount Royal again echoed with the McGill yell.

Chancellor Beatty who gave the address of the evening took as his subject, "Captains of Industry". The address is reproduced below.

The Chancellor's Address

If the items in our metropolitan press are to be believed, I am expected to address you very briefly on the subject of "Captains of Industry". I did not know until apprised through the newspapers that I was anticipated to speak on this subject as it is one which, in order to be informing and interesting to you, should contain an accurate description of the achievements and personalities of these outstanding men and that might conceivably be regarded as doubtful propriety. However in order not to depart from the wishes of your President and his associates who called upon me, I am going to mention a few of the men whose positions in Canada have been secured through the business world and whose achievements may be emulated by any one of you here.

Of necessity I take first three outstanding railway constructors and administrators: Lord Mount Stephen, Sir William Van Horne and Lord Shaughnessy, the first three Presidents of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Lord Mount Stephen was a Scotchman of great vision and courage and a financier of marked ability. He was not a railroad man in the practical sense as he had received his training as a merchant and subsequently as a banker but the character of his business education made him an ideal man to conceive and carry out the financial end of a great enterprise.

He was followed by Sir William Van Horne, an American, a practical railroad operator and a man whose talents made him a most fitting occupant of his office as General Manager and President during the time the construction of the Road was being carried on. Van Horne's great assets to the Country were his brilliant imagination his driving force and his real knowledge of construction problems.

Lord Shaughnessy was not a technical railroad man because his preliminary training was largely obtained in the business end of the enterprise. He was Purchasing Agent of the Road during construction and carried on his shoulders the enormous responsibility of buying the supplies to construct a transcontinental railway at a time of weak credit and scarce money. His personal characteristics were his faith in Canada, his great moral courage and his genius as an administrator and an organizer. To him more than any one else must be given the credit for the great efficiency and the high morale developed in that organization.

VALUE OF TRAINING

Now, I would call your attention to the fact that these three men were most admirably fitted by their training and by their personal characteristics to fill their offices throughout the period during which they were the chief executives of the Road. It seemed almost providential that during the three periods—conception and initial construction; completion; administration and development—the Company possessed the men best qualified to meet the particular problems of that period. This was not altogether accidental but due to the fact that the men had trained themselves to meet the situations which subsequently developed and when they did develop they were equipped by training and temperament to deal with them most effectively.

Before asking you to draw the deductions you will draw from the very few sentences I have uttered giving a tabloid description of three men whose names are household words in Canada in the business, I would mention that in the present generation we have other conspicuous examples of successful Canadians in various branches of business; Bankers such as

MANDOLIN CLUB BROADCASTS FEB. 26

Requests For Future Entertainments Received From New Jersey

The Mandolin Club will again broadcast on Wed. evening, Feb. 26th, from CHYC the Northern Electric Company, one of the oldest and best stations in the city. Great interest and enthusiasm has been aroused as a result of their recent entertainment. Numerous letters of congratulations from those who appreciate good music, have been received by the Club. The following letter arrived from New Jersey after the entertainment of last week.

Dear Radio Entertainers:—I presume CHYC is a new station as I've never had it before. However, you surely help keep the record for good music—from Canada. Last evening I enjoyed your program—which came through very loudly, of "Oh! Mabel," "Me and the Boy Friend," "Follow the Swallow," etc. Will you send a written acknowledgement of this with a schedule of your future entertainments?

Interceded Yours,

R.V.C. VICTORS IN RETURN BASKETBALL

M.S.P.E. Loses Both Games By Small Margins
23-21 and 28-20

Passing and Combination of R. V. C. Teams Was Superior

The return match between the R. V. C. and M.S.P.E. Basketball teams yesterday resulted in a double victory for the R.V.C., the scores for the first and second teams being 23-21 and 28-20.

This is the last basketball game the R.V.C. will play in Montreal this year, and it completes a very satisfactory programme as the Senior Sextette has won all games except the one in which they tied with the M. S. P. E. while the Second Team has lost only one game this season.

FIRST TEAM

At the whistle the ball was carried to the M.S.P.E. basket, but no goal was scored, and after good passing on the part of the R. V. C. a basket was scored by Miss Allen.

The play continued for some time under the R. V. C. basket and two more goals were scored. From then on the ball passed rapidly up and first half the score was 14-9 in favor of R. V. C.

The ball was carried at once to the M.S.P.E. basket and a goal scored by Miss Tatlow. This was followed by one free shot and two more goals by Miss Tatlow. After this encouragement the M. S. P. E. team picked up and fought harder than ever. The score was finally tied 21-21, but before time was called the R.V.C. scored another goal, thus winning the match by a majority of 2 points.

SECOND TEAM

At the toss-up the ball was carried to R.V.C. end, but was recovered by the M.S.P.E., and passed rapidly down the floor, with the result that a basket was netted by Miss Tatlow. Both teams then scored two free shots. From that time the play was mostly under the R.V.C. basket and at half time the score was 17-8 for R.V.C.

The second half was a hard fight between the two teams and several good passes were made. The M.S.P.E. team brought up the score gradually, but the R.V.C. team worked equally as hard and succeeded in winning the game with a score of 28-20.

Both teams were playing rather wildly and many fouls were called. The passing was better on the R. V. C. team and they showed better combination than their opponents.

Following is the line-up for the teams.

Extensive Decoration For The Annual Affair In Medical Bldg.

IN MUSEUM
Two Floors Of Museum To Be Used As Dancing Floor.

With Cliffe 'Menzie's' Collegians furnishing the music and Pierre of the Union serving the food, all is in readiness for the Medical Dance in the Medical Building to-night at 8.30 o'clock. The lower two floors of the Museum have been decorated for the occasion in an attractive colour scheme the final touches being put in last night. The patronesses will be Lady Currie, Mrs. C. F. Martin, Mrs. F. H. Mackay, Mrs. J. C. Simpson and Mrs. C. G. Garside.

The decorations which have been made on an extensive scale, are in lavender and purple. Many delightful sitting-out places have been provided, and ferns being used lavishly. A great inverted bell hanging in the well will be lighted in a novel manner. Carved shades lamps will shed mellow light, while curtains in harmony with the colour scheme of the same shades will hang at the ends of the corridors. The electric fixtures and furniture have kindly been lent by Goodwin's and Morgan's. Supper will be served on the top floor in one sitting.

The following ladies have been of great assistance to the dance committee, Mrs. E. Archibald, Mrs. J. C. Meakin, Mrs. C. P. Howard, Mrs. E. M. Eberts, Mrs. C. A. Peters, Mrs. D. S. Lewis, Mrs. H. P. Wright, Mrs. C. K. P. Henry, Mrs. E. H. Mason.

The dance committee in charge of the decorations and other arrangements is composed of the following: J. A. Ferguson, chairman, R. J. Delaney, W. E. Thompson, N. L. F. McLean, F. B. Fraser, G. A. Millen.

The Medical Dance is always one of the most brilliant events of the season. The grim halls of the New Medical Building are annually transformed from their usual severe academic lines and the museum camouflaged and for one night the sounds of revelry fill the large spaces. This year's dance promises to keep up the record set in former years. The tickets sale has been satisfactory.

PHILOSOPHICAL CLUB MEETING POSTPONED

The meeting of the Philosophical Club, scheduled for last night, was postponed until next Thursday night. At an impromptu gathering of four persons, held in the lobby of Strathcona Hall last night, it was unanimously decided to postpone the meeting, on account of the lack of an audience.

HERBERT MARLER AT CANADIAN CLUB

Member For St. George To Give Address on Monday

Herbert Marler, M.P., will speak to the McGill Canadian Club on Monday February 23rd, in the Union Ball Room at 5 p.m. Subject not given out yet, but will be a political one.

As is known to everyone he is the Federal member for St. George. Montreal has rapidly come to the fore since his election.

He is the originator of what is known as the Balanced Policy, and his great speech last week to the House has brought him considerable distinction and aroused a widespread interest. Mr. Marler is a fine speaker, and as such is in great demand, and the Canadian Club considers itself fortunate in being able to give all students an opportunity to hear him.

There will be no charge for admission and the public is invited to attend.

Y.W.C.A. TAKES HOCKEY GAME FROM R.V.C.

Splendid Checking Done By Y. W. Defense

SCORE WAS 4-0
R. V. C. Team Showed Better Style In Their Combination Play.

The hockey game R. V. C. versus Y. W. C. A. was played off on the Hollow Rink last night with the result that the Y. W. C. A. won by the score 4-0.

R. V. C. started off with the puck but good checking by the Y. W. C. prevented a goal. The puck was carried back to the R. V. C. goal where Miss Robertson made a splendid rush up the ice but was checked and Miss Powell scored for the opponent's team. Miss D. Hutchison and Miss E. Hutchison both made speedy rushes but were checked at the nets. Miss Lodd did some splendid stopping in the R. V. C. goal and the score at the end of the first period was 1-0.

In the second period Miss Lodd still maintained her standard of goaling. The Y. W. C. A. did some strong checking and the score was not altered.

Miss Powell and Miss Farmer each netted a goal at the beginning of the third period, but the R.V.C. team showed better combination, the wings especially played a clever game.

The final goal was made by Miss Kenny in the last few minutes of play. The line up:—

Quizzers Quizzed. The young ladies of Newcomb College in New Orleans were put through an "intelligence test" and came off badly. Thereupon they challenged the faculty to a similar test. This time the results weren't much to boast of either. Here are some answers from a group of 23 professors:
Al Jolson is a wrestling champion.
Fillet mignon is an opera by Puccini.
Brilliantine is a preparation that ladies put into their eyes to make them shine.
Grover Cleveland Bergdahl was a World War hero, or perhaps "a Democratic statesman."
Maraschino "was Prime Minister of Russia before the war."

All of which suggests that what Broadway or Chicago would classify as fundamental may not mean much to the professional mind.

Or to the men of letters, for that matter. When Bernard Shaw was asked by a New York editor for his opinion of Babe Ruth, if you remember, he cabled back: "Who is she?" Collier's Weekly.

Hughes In 175 lb. Class And Gordon In Heavyweight

The B. W. and F. teams left the Windsor Station at 11.30 last night for Toronto to compete at the annual Assault-at-Arms, which takes place at Hart House to-day and to-morrow.

The prospects of the Boxing team are good. Noy Gordon is going as heavy weight, Gordon Hughes who recently put up a fine exhibition in the 160 lb class against Black, the Canadian Olympic champion, at the last moment consented to be the 175 lb. representative. Five of the eight entrants have represented the college before, two of them being intercollegiate Title Holders. Among the others are two freshmen who have shown up very well.

In the opinion of Mr. Smith, the wrestling coach, this year's matmen are the strongest that have represented McGill for some time, three of the competitors being former intercollegiate champions and the rest all experienced men.

Cresting last year's intercollegiate champion is again on the team accompanied by H. Kne, the winner of the invitation meet held recently.

SECOND TEAM BATTLES FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Intermediate Hockey Squad Meets Loyola To-morrow

AT LOYOLA

Victory Will Mean The Intermediate Intercollegiate Title.

With an intercollegiate championship at stake the McGill intermediate hockey squad is battling the Green and White of Loyola at the latter's rink to-morrow.

Three times these two teams have met this season. Once Loyola triumphed; once McGill came out on top, and once the game ended with the score a tie.

With the announcement that the Universite de Montreal seconds have defeated their remaining games, to-morrow's McGill-Loyola contest becomes a final championship encounter, and if the brand of hockey displayed at their last meeting when McGill won with a 2-1 score is any indication of what is to be expected to-morrow, this last game will be a real championship contest in every sense.

Since the senior squad is taking a day or so off between its American trip and Monday's Beaubien Cup battle, the intermediate game will be McGill's premier hockey contest Saturday, and a good crowd of Red and White supporters is expected at the Loyola rink. A strong support from the side is going to mean much to the McGill team, the Loyola students will be out by the hundreds cheering on their favourites, who will be playing on their home ice as well as having a great part of the crowd behind them.

RESERVATIONS FOR RED AND WHITE REVUE

Students' Exchange Tickets On Sale Today

NO MAIL ORDERS

Exchange Tickets Will Be Withdrawn In One Week

The Student exchange tickets for the Red and White Revue are on sale for the first time to-day and it is highly desirable that those intending to buy them should consult their respective class representatives without delay. It is absolutely essential that all returns from this advance sale to the students shall be in by the end of next week, as the box office at the Union opens on Monday, March the second.

In pursuance of the policy adopted last year, the ticket committee has determined that no more than two exchange tickets shall be sold to any one student and that these shall be sold strictly on a cash basis. When the Union box office opens on March 2nd, these exchange tickets will be hotored and the students who present them there will be attended to on the merits of their priority—that is to say, those who get there first will be given the best seats and those who come late run the chance of being disappointed. It is worthy of note, in this connection, that no mail orders will be considered at student rates. This is in order to give those who take the trouble to get in the front of the line when the box office opens the widest choice of good seats possible.

Due to the fact that the Red and White Revue is being put on at His Majesty's Theatre this year and that this theatre seats a much smaller number than the St. Denis, the practice of large bodies of students reserving large blocs of seats is being avoided where possible. Students are asked to co-operate in this matter as far as possible, in as much as it will obviously contribute greatly to the success of the show and will ensure a greater degree of satisfaction to the ticket purchasers as a whole.

The exchange tickets that go on sale to-day are of four colours, each representing a different price. Those who intend to see the matinee performance of the Red and White Revue must see that they procure exchange tickets stamped "Matinee", because these tickets so stamped are non-interchangeable with the exchange tickets for the three evening performances.

The scale of prices for students Evening (3 performances)

Boxes $2.75
Orchestra $1.65
1st Balcony $1.10
2nd Balcony $1.10
Matinee (one performance)
Boxes $2.20
Orchestra $1.65
1st Balcony $1.65
2nd Balcony $1.10

The Committee asks the students to remember that they have not got forever to purchase their exchange tickets; in fact, they have just over one week. When the box office opens for the sale of theatre tickets, all outstanding exchange tickets will have been drawn in. After that date a student who wishes to see the Red and White Revue for 1925 will have to pay the prices charged to the general public.

MONTREAL FRIDAY, FEBRUARY, 20, 1925.

A FIRST PERFORMANCE

A comparatively small audience witnessed the first performance of the Players Club in the Biological Building last night and left the temporary theatre convinced that there are some worthy exponents of the dramatic art at McGill.

As an infant organization the Players Club has had to contend with many difficulties; not the least of these was finding a suitable place to stage the performances. The Biological Building served the purpose very well although the limited space for the stage necessitated more careful arrangement and design of the settings. When the Club becomes a firmly established undergraduate institution and interest in it is more general it will not be necessary to confine activities to home-made stages and to little theatres that are chosen in anticipation of a small audience.

The interpretations of the three short plays: "Peter the Grea and Alexis," by Landor; "The First and the Last," by Galsworthy; and "Pearl of Dawn," by Hudson were excellent, particularly in the case of the latter play. At a first performance the lengthy pauses required for shifting scenery were inevitable. What was learned by experience in this respect last night will help in avoiding awkward interims at the two subsequent performances.

PATHETIC AND APATHETIC

The B. W. and F. teams left for Toronto last night. There were two students at the station to see them off.

Two of the men on the boxing team had to volunteer to enter in classes much above their weights—to fill a breach.

Last night a meeting of the Philosophical Society had to be postponed. Three students turned out.

The Junior Hockey Team defeated the U. of M. last night by a score of 1-0. There were three McGill rooters.

This issue of the Daily was edited by three men—a partial staff. There should be at least seven reporters.

Ten students attended the performance of the Players Club last night. The rest of the audience was made up of professors and citizens of Montreal.

We suggest to Ecclesiasticus that he should have included "Watch and —" in his panacea.

This morning at 12.47 o'clock the McGill yell was given in front of Christ Church Cathedral by a gang of rowdies, presumably students—misplaced enthusiasm.

First Performance Of Players Club Is Acclaimed A Success

The first performance of the Players Club given last night in the Little Theatre of the Biological Building was a bold experiment, and an experiment which was very much worth attempting.

The difficulties of a first production on a new and home-made stage in a small room where the players are very close to their audience are obvious, and that these should have shown themselves to a certain extent last night and been responsible for rather prolonged pauses between the various scenes was only to have been expected, and the experience learned last night will no doubt obviate them at the two subsequent performances.

Walter Savage Landor's "Peter the Great and Alexis" was a curtain raiser but only of minor interest.

Galsworthy's "First and Last" is a tensesly imagined drama, and Glanville Taylor in the role of Larry, the good-for-nothing was able to cast an air of ghastly glamour over the whole part; that carried conviction from his first line. He played the role as if he was in a daze. He had murdered the man who was ill-treating the woman whom Larry had loved, and since that moment he hardly knew what was happening. His lines were subdued, but clear. He moved as in a dream, and was able to carry his audience with him, to make them feel the power and pity of the "web of circumstance" that was weaving itself about him and Wanda, the woman whom he loved and who loved him to the point of death. This part, splendidly taken by Dorothy Freeman was the other most finely characterized performance. In these two players the Club has made a discovery of permanent value. Miss Freeman portrays the pitiful love-lorn little walt, with the naive abandon that the role demands. Her softly modulated voice, her gestures, the little movements of the hands, and above all the troubled, mobile face on which one is able to read every thought and emotion. It was altogether a notable performance D. G. Massy-Beresford, in the role of Keith, Larry's respectable brother, was more than adequate. His performance shows the effect of hard study of a difficult part.

Cable advice was received at the offices of the Robert Reford Company Limited here, the other day, that Pickfords Limited, of London England, have arranged to enlarge their European tour staff by 20% during the coming season.

The "Pearl of Dawn" is a complete contrast to the Galsworthy playlet. It is satiric, clever, witty well acted and well staged. L. S. Giulianelli, as Ali Ali, the Good showed himself a comedian of rare talent. He also is a discovery of first rate importance. The part of the cynical merchant fits him like a glove. C. R. West as Harvan Al Raschia, Miss A. Fogg as the Caliph's favourite wife and nearly all the members of a large cast gave a sterling performance.

The staging of every scene was one of the most remarkable aspects of the whole performance which reflects credit not only upon the actors but upon producers, scene painters and all connected with the staging of the production especially J. Taylor for the production of "Pearl of Dawn" and Coulborn and Lane.

Scotland, England, France, Belgium and Holland early in the coming season and Pickfords Limited are scheduled to look after all shore arrangements in connection with the tours after reaching the other side.

These St. Lawrence route tours are claimed to be directly responsible for the additions made to the already large establishment of Pickfords Limited in Europe.

Shirley James, European Passenger and Traffic Manager of Pickfords Limited, will personally supervise all arrangements in connection with various itineraries, and special side trips and extension tours have been organized at a minimum of cost for the benefit of tourists who wish to stay over and go farther afield.

Pickfords Limited in one of the oldest institutions of its kind in the world having been established over three hundred years and at the present time its is firmly established with branches and associated companies in all parts of the world.

Guy Tombs of Guy Tombs Ltd., General transportation agents, is President of Pickfords Colonial, of Montreal and New York.

The first tour is scheduled to start from Montreal on June 19th, on the Anchor-Donaldson steamer "Athens" returning July 17th, from Southampton on the Cunard liner "Auronia"; the second tour will start June 27th, on the Cunard "Auronia" returning on the "Alaunia" from Liverpool July 24th, and the third from Montreal July 3rd, on the Anchor-Donaldson liner "Lelitia" for Casco, returning on the Cunard "Ascania" from Southampton July 31st.

The Editor,

MCGILL DAILY.

Sir,—I understand that a ballot is going to be held on the question of the Lord Rectorship. I should like to suggest that it might be an excellent move if an additional question be put to the undergraduate body at the same time. It appears that this would entail no extra expense or trouble and it would clean up a point that has for some time been in dispute.

The question is this.—Are the majority of students in favour of the five dollar levy that was added to the general subscription at the commencement of this college year?

Personally I do not think that they are for the following reasons:

(a) Generally speaking it has not resulted in a financial saving to the undergraduates.

(b) The much talked of "McGill Spirit" has not been augmented thereby, and finally (c) it appears to establish a bad principle in that an enthusiastic minority seem to have "railroaded" the motion into operation.

I am, Sir, Yours truly,

A. G. LANGLEY

INTER. DEBATE

Proceeds To Be Used For The Redpath Library

When the Maccabean Circle of McGill meets the Judaean Society of Varsity in debate to-morrow night in the Union at 8.15 p. m., an interesting encounter is expected. The debate is an annual event between the two Menorah clubs and takes place alternately in Montreal and Toronto for the Bennett Cup, at present held by McGill.

The proceeds of the evening are to go towards buying books for the Redpath Library. The Maccabean Circle has already donated many books to the library and keeps up these gifts periodically. The price of the tickets is fifty cents, and already about three hundred have been sold.

The subject of the debate is: "Resolved that the Jews of the Diaspora, while continuing to lend material aid towards the upbuilding of the Jewish homeland, should have its political, social and religious structure to be determined by the Jews of Palestine alone." In view of present circumstances, the discussion of this contentious subject is both timely and pertinent. Recently many authorities on the subject like Maurice Samuel, have come forward with the statement that the Jews of Palestine alone have the right to determine the political, social and religious structures of the Jewish people. Nevertheless, there are many who claim that the Jews in the rest of the world, since they do lend material aid towards the proper running of affairs. They claim too, that it is they who are in touch with the other nations of the world, and with the activities upon which the existence of Palestine depends. Thus, the subject is a broad one, and gives wide scope for debate.

McGill is to take the Negative. Charles Brownstein one of the Maccabean speakers is Vice-President of the Circle and a graduate fellow in Economics and Political Science, having won the scholarship when he graduated last year in Arts. Samuel Wisberg the other Maccabean representative, is well-known around McGill for his activity in the Mock Parliament. He is to debate for McGill at Kingston next week.

Reports indicate that in Breslin and Positz, Toronto is sending down a formidable and worthy pair.

A musical programme is to precede the debate. The Misses Ethel Starke in the violin and Julia Starke in the piano will render several selections, and Miss Evelyn Benjamin will sing.

Students and all Members of the University are cordially invited to this service.

From Minnesota

What is the duty of a student of a State university as regards the culture, the opinions, the desires of the tax-payers of the hinterland, the people who support it with their revenue? This is a question that must be answered to meet the criticisms of our University current in the State of Minnesota.

Responsible men of the administration have given their answer on several occasions recently. It is, in the shortest possible syllogism, that the people of Minnesota bear the burden of maintaining this institution; that their good will as expressed in money depends on the University's conforming to their ideas of culture, of right living, of a satisfactory output; therefore the existence of the university as a materially sound school depends on the student's heeding the voice of the people and regulating his culture thereby. The city newspapers and numberless publications outside the State at one time or other have as Sir Vincent Meredith, Contractors and leaders in industrial life such as Sir Herbert Holt, Manufacturers such as Sir Charles Gordon; Financiers and men involved deeply in commercial problems such as Sir Joseph Flavelle and Sir Augustus Nanton.

None of these men began life with as great advantages as you possess but such was their force of character, their ability, their diligence and their judgment that they rose to very high positions and not one of them confined himself exclusively to the mere amassing of money. All of them fitted in one way or another into the community life of Canada and they have evinced the same interest and given the same assistance to problems of a public character that they did to their own business, proving that their success was not accidental but the result warranted by the size of the men themselves and that their ideals of citizenship were high.

Now, you gentlemen are undergraduates of the School of Commerce, a School designed to give the fundamentals of business training in much the same way as the basis of professional training is given in other faculties. It is not an attempt to create a profession out of business because that would be impossible.

No Qualifications

Heretofore business has probably suffered from the fact that there were no restrictions of any kind or qualifications for entry into it and consequently maxims such as "Business is Business," which means "The Devil take the Hindmost," were considered as indicative of business ethics. In some unknown way the impression was created that a business man was not altogether as punctilious or as circumspect in his practices as a man trained to what were called the "higher professions." It is inevitable that considering the vast variety of business activities in which men engaged that there should be not an absolute uniformity in either the practice or the personal characteristics of the individuals in that class but it is a fact that the cumulative effect of education and experience has enhanced in recent years what those standards of business practices should be. When I say that business will probably never be professionalized, I do not mean to intimate that a profession within a business will be created as indeed it has been created and so fundamentally the idea behind the School of Commerce is the training of business essentials and incidentally through those who receive it the raising of the standard of business ethics.

In this connection, you will remember in the old days that businessmen affected an almost contemptuous attitude towards institutions of learning and higher education, an attitude that was almost equalled by the scorn for the business men held by professional men on the theory that the former were uninterested in the higher things of life. An American correspondent tells of an amusing incident of the visit of Doctor Gilbert Murray, Regius Professor of Greek at Oxford University and President of the League of Nations Union. In a discussion of American Universities mention was made of the Columbia School of Business as a new educational development. "A School of Business! Great Heavens! What can they teach there?" exclaimed Murray. "They teach business theory," said the correspondent, "the accumulation and digestion of important commercial facts and in addition practical courses." "I dare say they will be teaching crime next," was the learned Professor's only comment.

Herbert Hoover

But this is all evolutionary, not revolutionary. Secretary Hoover, of the United States, has expressed it in an address to the Chamber of Commerce in the following practical language: "American business needs a lifting purpose greater than the struggle of materialism. Nor can it lie in some évanescence, emotional, dramatic crusade. It lies in the higher pitch of economic life, in a finer regard for the rights of others, a stronger devotion to obligations of citizenship that will assure an improved leadership in every community and the Nation; it lies in the organization of the forces of our economic life so that they may produce happier individual lives, more secure in employment and comfort wider in the possibilities of enjoyment of nature larger in its opportunities of intellectual life."

Now, gentlemen, when you graduate you are going to seek your opportunity to make a living and a great deal will depend on your own mental attitude when doing so. Do not graduate with the feeling that you are immediately fitted by your educational advantages for some high official or business position. Assume, and you will be correct in assuming it, that your education has only just commenced and that your post-graduate course in business must be secured in the hard University of Experience. All the larger commercial institutions are to-day seeking to incorporate the best material in their enterprises. They want likely men who are not afraid to work. They want men who are willing to start at the bottom and by practical day-to-day experience acquire an intimate knowledge of the fundamentals of their business. The rewards are not great or immediate but such experience is essential to any future success. Railroads are a good example. To me, railroading is the greatest game in the world. It has a variety of activity; it has an importance in the life of the community; it has a multitude of problems, often complex which taxes the ingenuity and the resource of men. Its rewards in money are no greater, if as great, as in other enterprises but it is fascinating work which gives ample scope to a man's ability and ample stimulus to his imagination. In railroading, as in other institutions, the college graduate who has the fundamentals, not necessarily through a Commerce Course, but through an Arts or an Engineering or Science Course, are considered the most likely prospects but here again we meet with that traditional idea that education places a man apart from others and fits him for immediate preferment.

CHOICE OF A CAREER

Let me give you an example. A railroad man who had come through the hard school of practical training reached the position of Superintendent on an important Division of a railway. He was ambitious that his sons should be better educated than he so he gave them both a college training. One took Engineering with the idea that he would enter railway service. On graduation he approached his father for his advice and the father, whose ambitions for his son were being realized, immediately acquiesced but stipulated that he must start at the bottom and begin work as a trackman in order that he should have practical experience in the first essential of maintenance. The boy hesitated but his mother did not. She could not understand why her son after four or five years of hard study and as well educated as a boy that age should be, should be compelled to start in such a subordinate capacity. The boy did not start but in deference to his mother's views, undertook work which did not fit in with his inclinations or his ambitions simply because work of a lowly character was considered to be beneath the dignity of a college graduate. No more false conception than this could ever exist. The boy's training as a trackman would have been temporary and he would have been moved to other branches of the same service but he would have known track when he got through and that knowledge would have been of great value to him in any position to which he was promoted. Any work can be made dignified and work of all kinds is necessary in the accumulation of practical experience.

REMAIN IN CANADA

Let me ask you, if at all possible, to remain in Canada. I appreciate the magnitude of the United States with its tremendous population and great wealth and the variety of opportunity which that population and that wealth affords to Canadians. I know, too, Canadian young men are most welcome in American institutions because of their capacity and reliability but do not forget that this country has borne the major portion of the cost of your education; that it is your Country and that you can do much for it. Therefore, my advice to you is to start with the settled conviction that unless it is impossible for you to gain a foothold even in a minor capacity here, your own Country should receive the benefit of your education and your own ability.

Now, it is almost indecent for me to address you in this strain at a banquet but I have been informed by Mr. Mitchell that I am here for a purpose and he will expect that purpose to be fulfilled. This is the only excuse for the seriousness of my remarks and I will end by one more piece of advice and that is this: now and hereafter take the greatest possible interest in your Country's af-said essentially the same thing.

This philosophy of the University's vocation is a palpable sophism and promises results vicious to free-thinking in its implications and consequences. Insofar as the student should conform to moral conduct in his personal life, the rule of the state and society should and does govern; and indeed, the life of the state suffers no unflattering reflection in student life. But its own philosophies of government, of economics, of politics, of general culture, the state has no right to dictate to the free student. It is essential to the very spirit of learning that its devotees should be free, undetached to, and answerable for their thoughts only so far as they bridge the rights of others.

What does an institution of learning exist for if not to change, to raise, to augment the culture of its milieu? The philosophy prevalently voiced of conformance has the seeds of death in its body; it leads to submission, to stagnation, eventually to decay. The student of Minnesota is his own master as regards what he shall believe, say and live, keeping as he must to those decent, basic observations that society rightly enforces for order and safety.

fairly, study them, discuss them, understand them, prepare yourselves to appreciate the economic and national significance of what is going on from day to day around you. It will be pleasant, easy and profitable because in the consideration of them of necessity you will find that your own interests are affected and the relation of public questions to your individual prosperity you will appreciate to be very great and it will enable you to perform intelligently and with convictions the very high standards of citizenship which it should be the ambition of every college graduate to possess. In the variety of your personal activities the variegated character of the interests you will acquire, put your Country's interests first. Think in terms of Canada and not in the terms of a local community. It will be a very great country but it needs the help of its young men if its national interests are to be forwarded and its commercial standards are to be raised to the highest possible level.
